

Comparison of Settlements in London and Berlin

Knobelsdorff-Schule Berlin /
Lewisham College London

Cover
Town Planning Structure

Comenius Project 2010/11

The London Terrace

The Berlin Block

Comparison of Settlements in London and Berlin

Knobelsdorff-Schule Berlin /
Lewisham College London

1.1
19th Century / Industrialisation

Comenius Project 2010/11

London Quarter Primrose Hill: typical Victorian middle class terraces (ca. 1850), working material: bricks and plastering

Berlin Chamissoplatz, Kreuzberg: typical lower and middle class quarter (ca. 1880), working material: bricks and plastering

Comparison of Settlements in London and Berlin

Knobelsdorff-Schule Berlin /
Lewisham College London

2.1
Reform Style (ca. 1910)

Comenius Project 2010/11

London Hampstead Garden Suburb: multisocial reform project (ca. 1906-1925), above: typical street scene with middle class terraces

Berlin Gartenstadt Staaken, Spandau: working class garden suburb (1913-1917), above: typical street scene with terraced and semi-detached houses

Comparison of Settlements in London and Berlin

Knobelsdorff-Schule Berlin /
Lewisham College London

3.2
Post-War Modern

Comenius Project 2010/11

London Barbican, City of London: “brutal” middle class estate (ca. 1960), working material: prefabricated concrete panels

Berlin “Corbusier-Haus”, Charlottenburg: middle class block of flats (1957) called “Dwelling Machine”, working material: prefabricated concrete panels